

In case you missed the last report, The Truman Show is a 1998 movie about a guy, Jim Carrey as Truman Burbank, who grew up living an ordinary life as an insurance salesman that—unbeknownst to him—takes place on a huge set that can be seen from space, populated by actors for a reality television show aired worldwide 24/7 about him since he was a baby. To keep Truman from wandering beyond this gigantic set and discovering the truth, the director uses scenes that instill fear of traveling past the water's edge--and the edge of the set. Everything is therefore scripted and fake reality. Today, there are perhaps several billion Trumans all living within this artificial set, and with one main U.S. Director , assisted by many crew and actors, to keep this artificial narrative alive.
